Preaching Mission Of Unitarian Church Highly Beneficial

The Preaching Mission conducted in the Unitarian Church last week grew steadily in interest and inspiration for those who attended regularly. The Power of the Spirit was much in evidence.

In speaking of Immortality, Science and Psychic Research, Dr. Westwood said:

"That the belief in immortality was as natural as the belief in any other law of nature and that there was reason to think that in time the researches of science might be able to prove the actuality of immortality even to the sceptical mind."

"I am persuaded that survival will become more than a faith or a hope," Dr. Westwood continued. "In fact, it will be demonstrated as one of the great certainties. There is no death. What seems so is transition."

We are living the eternal life now, and death is simply a change in our continual existence.

"Always man has hoped that the question of human survival might be answered in the affirmative. Hitherto it has been only an inference and a hope. There has not been what may be regarded as conclusive evidence of survival. Immortality has been a postulate of faith. It is the supreme assertion of Christianity, which received its great impetus from the conviction that the cross and the grave were not the end of Jesus. The early apostles proclaimed with might the doctrine of a 'risen Lord' who had proved victor over the grave."

"Science today is doing much to sustain faith in immortality. 'Belief in immortality,' as an eminent biologist declared, is generic. There have been found people minus faith in God, but never those without faith in survival in some form. The inference is plain."

"The greatest of all scientific postulates is that of the uniformity of nature's laws. Without this, science would be impossible. One of the laws which science proclaims is that of adaptation. This appears basic to life. All life survives through the power to adapt itself to its environment. It does not attempt adaptation to unrealities."

In his discourse Sunday morning, Dr. Westwood spoke of the sub-conscious mind as being an inheritance from the past of the individual and of the race. There was something in the past of one and another which lay dormant, maybe forgotten, and yet still having its influence in life. The animal inheritance of the race is postulated in St. Paul's words about the warring of the flesh against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh. Men would do in spirit what the animal inclination militates against. But we should not be ruled by the past, but by our inheritance from the past. We are children of God, we are of His spirit, and there is a future to which we may look and for which we should rise above the past, above the animal and live in the spirit, letting that be supreme, and it may be or can be. The Christ overcame the world, and there is the power native to every one to follow after in his master-ship.

The subject of discourse in the evening was "The Coming Religion." The speaker thought it would be the religion of the unity of the spirit, not that of theological dogmas. It would be in recognition of spiritual law and is conformity to it. He is coming. It may not be fully in this generation, but it may be fifty years distant, or more, but there are clearings on the horizon signs of it, and it is coming as surely as man is the child of God, the Universal Spirit. The age of faith is before us and not behind us. What is faith? It is not that something is going to bid one for us or in our behalf while we wait. It is that we have the power to conquer circumstances, to control our fortunes, to be creators with God whose children we are. We should not be concerned as to what kind of religion one has, but should be mightily concerned as to what each one is doing with his religion. Not he that saith, Lord! Lord! but he that doeth the will of the Father, is the requirement.

An impressive service of reconstruction concluded the Mission, when four ministers went forward to the altar, as a symbol of their desire for a closer walk with God, that they might reveal to their people more and more the way of the Christ. The people standing were asked to consecrate themselves anew to the spiritual ideals of the church.

Mr. Birdsall came to Northfield in the spring of 1928 to assume the position of Cashier of the Northfield National Bank at the time of its organization. He had a varied business experience in Central Valley, New York, which had been his home prior to moving to Northfield. There he had served as Director of the local bank and acted as manager and purchasing agent for his uncle's large general store which handled the catering problem of several of the large camps in the Bear Mountain Park.

A year ago he resigned as Cashier of the Bank to become assistant of Mr. George McEwan in the Accounting and Bookkeeping Department of Northfield Seminary.

Mr. Birdsall in his connection with the local bank proved himself a popular and well-liked official. His friends all rejoice in the new responsibilities which have come to him. Mr. and Mrs. Birdsall and their three children live in the Field House on Maple street in Northfield. Both Mr. and Mrs. Birdsall are active in town affairs and prominently connected with its social activities. Mrs. Birdsall is a graduate of Smith College, being a student there at the same time Miss Wilson, Principal of Northfield Seminary was an undergraduate.

The Herald in behalf of the community which is served extends congratulations to The Northfield Schools and to the Birdsalls.

Republican Session At Turners Falls

The outdoor meeting of Republicans announced for last Saturday in Schuteun Park at Riverside was moved to Hibernian Hall at Turners Falls owing to the cold weather conditions. A good crowd had gathered and all were well rewarded by the presence and addresses of many candidates for public office.

Olaf Hoff, chairman of the local Republican town committee, presided and introduced the speakers who were Congressman Treadway; Francis A. Prescott of Grafton, candidate for state treasurer; Rev. Margaret Barnard of Greenfield, head of the Greenfield District Women's Republican club and Mrs. Mary Pratt Potter of Greenfield, recent district delegate to the National Republican convention.

After complimenting John W. Haigis, on his splendid work at the state Republican convention and expressing his belief that Haigis will soon be the leading figure in Massachusetts party circles, Treadway launched into a bitter condemnation of Gov. Roosevelt and his methods of gaining support in the various sections of the country.

Prescott urged the Republican party be restored to power in this state and that extreme economy be used in administering public funds.

Mrs. Potter told of the recent state party convention. Rev. Margaret Barnard stressed the importance of bringing out a 100 per cent Republican vote.

A similar meeting was being held at the same time at Sugar Loaf Reservation at South Deerfield attended by a large number of people.

Possibly Two-Cent Postage Rate Again

That it is not a paying proposition to charge higher rates than the traffic will bear, is illustrated by the experience of the Post Office Department in the matter of three-cent letter postage. It is revealed that during July and August, the two months immediately following the enactment of increased rates, postal revenues were about the same as for the corresponding months of 1931. This indicates that the volume of mail for the period in question was less this year than last. It also indicates that a larger proportion of letters are being sent third-class this year than last.

When the new revenue bill was enacted, it was estimated that Federal revenues would be increased to the extent of $160,000,000 a year by higher postal rates, but it is already manifest that these estimates were entirely too optimistic.

In a recent public address, Postmaster-General Walter F. Brown pointed out that the Department was not mistaken when it anticipated that increased rates would not meet with favor, and he urged that the prime objective should now be to get back to the two-cent postage rate at the earliest possible moment.

MacMillan Talk Is Appreciated

Commander Donald MacMillan spoke at Silverthorne hall on Saturday evening to the faculty and students of the seminary and ownspeople. He showed moving pictures of his various expeditions and his men encountered in the Arctic. The seniors of Mount Hermon attended the lecture. Public Invited To The Seminary Art Exhibit

The Art Department of Northfield Seminary has made an interesting announcement of an exhibition of Modern Pictorial Photography to be given in Home Science Hall next week, October 10-16. This is an exhibition circulated by the Aemerician Federation of Arts, a national organization for the cultivation of the Arts, with headquarters at Washington, D. C. It consists of fifty photographs invited from individual artists and selected from current exhibitions. Among the artists represented are Margaret Boucke - White, Anton Bruehl, Arthur Gerlach, Torkel Korling, Wynn Richards, Paul Strand, Raymond W. Trowbridge and Edward Weston.

While the subjects are varied, being in some instances the traditional ones, there is abundant illustration of the Modernistic Movement in the field of photography. The attention to detail, of which the camera is capable when operated by artists, is particularly noticeable. Perhaps artistic skill is most admirably shown in the effects of shading and the contrast of light and dark. A study of these prints will make one realize the importance of pictorial art in modern advertising.

On October 10-15, inclusive, this exhibition will be open to visitors, 1:30-5:30 p.m. On Sunday, October 16, it will be open 12-1 and 2-4:30. There is no admission fee.

Century Celebration Institution For Blind

The completion of a century of progress in the education of the blind will be celebrated November 9th and 10th by the Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind, Watertown, Mass. Started in the early days of the republic when the blind were regarded as derelicts of society and of little consequence, the Perkins Institution has developed methods of teaching which have enabled thousands of afflicted persons to take their places as respected and self-supporting citizens.

In addition to giving the blind children the fundamentals of a primary education, the Perkins school lays great stress upon the cultural and practical arts suited for the blind in their appreciation of life. Music forms a very important part of the activities of the school, and frequently graduates are able to earn their livelihood from music because of such training. One of the most notable features of the school is its choir of young voices, which each year gives a series of concerts.

The pupils at the school live in groups in cottages where, with the exception of the cooking and the general cleaning, all the light household work is carried on through the efforts of the pupils, no one of whom, however, has such an excess of it to interfere with studies and recreation. In this way the schooling of the students is co-ordinated with a home atmosphere.

Associated in this work is a woman who for many years has been a summer resident of Northfield and who has a cottage on Rustic Ridge. Miss L. R. Kinman is known to many here for her devotion to this work and at present is Treasurer of the Rustic Ridge Association.

The "Gym" Classes Enrollment Large

Thirty-nine town boys enrolled at Mount Hermon "gym" last Monday evening, and thirty-five girls at the Seminary "gym" on Tuesday evening. It did not take long for both groups to get to work. This year it is required that the moderate fee toward overhead expenses be paid in advance. This will help to insure regular attendance and better work under the instructors.

The sessions in both "gyms" are open free to parents or interested friends who can find seats in the galleries.

"Macbeth" At Greenfield

In the High School Auditorium at Greenfield Thursday evening at eight o'clock October 13th Hamilton Ward will present Shakespeare's play "Macbeth."

The charm of Mr. Ward's performance is that he combines the poetry and action in his rendition and makes the characters and the plots of the plays live through his interpretation.

Shakespeare's genius will live forever and his plays will be read as long as literature survives, but only the art of the actor will re-create the Music of his Drama to the ear and the eye.

The performance of the version requires from an hour to an hour and a quarter and is played in costume.

Many pupils from Northfield's High School will attend and tickets may be secured by any of our citizens in Northfield who also want to attend by application at the local school. Adults 50 cents, children 20 cents.

A young wife, wishing to announce the birth of her first child to a friend in a distant city, sent this telegram:

Her friend, not familiar with the Scriptures, said to her husband: "Margaret evidently has a boy who weighs nine pounds and six ounces, but why on earth did they name him Isaiah?"

EDITORIAL

When fall the evening shadows
Long and deep across the hill;
When all the air is fragrance
And all the voices still.

When the Summer sun seems passing
Above the mountain's brow,
As if she left reluctantly
A view, so lovely now.

Despite the fact that many of the fairs have fallen by the wayside this fall, depression made no inroads on the crowds attending the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield. The 16th annual after seven full days of activities was attended by 258,410 compared with 258,873 for last year. Wonderful weather conditions were afforded and the customary high grade show was afforded.

The public hardly appreciates the fact of the utter wastefulness of the people of the United States. Do you know that:—

Every day Fire burns 5 schools, 5 churches, 15 hotels, 1 hospital, 4 warehouses, 96 farms, 6 department stores, 2 theatres, 8 public garages, 3 printing plants, and 3 dry goods stores. It burns 15 homes every hour — WHICH IS ONE HOME EVERY 4 MINUTES!

And the public have to pay the bill for insurance rates which are based upon the amount paid for losses.

The President has asked the people of the United States to give this matter serious consideration and has proclaimed October 9th to 15th as FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

It will be well for each one of us to look over our property, removing any useless debris, throwing out old papers and correcting any hazard that might cause a fire.

The Editor of the Orange Enterprise-Journal must have had an inspiration in his estimate of the small communities like Orange and Northfield for in the last issue of his paper he writes of a conclusion with which we heartily agree. "Two things have come out of the depression that are worth noting. The large centers of population have discovered that they cannot get along without the country. The small communities have discovered that they can make their own life without much worrying concerning large cities. For long it was a habit of big cities to display airs of superiority to the so-called 'rural communities.' They have pretended to believe that the small town was passing into eclipse, and that people would flock to big cities and make them more and more important and influential. And, also, a lot of 'country' people, lured by the glamour of the cities, have left the countryside. They have discovered, many of them too late, that life in the small communities has a thousand advantages not possessed by large centers, and that the mushroom development of big cities has been a bad and disturbing thing. Today the small city is taking on a new dignity and individuality. We see everywhere the proof that the small community is realizing its possibilities, forgetting to ape the manners of the more artificial 'centers of population' and attending enthusiastically to the duty of building a destiny for itself. As the small community becomes strengthened, and as the farm community becomes more independent, the large city will prosper too. What we need in America is vitality of individual effort, and this is what the small city will give in the next generation as it did in the past. The disillusioned folk who thought that the bright lights were what made life worth while, will be drifting back to the country, eager to capture once again the peace, the sincerity, the integrity, the gladness that abides where neighborly comradeship is possible."

Did you hear the address of President Hoover at Des Moines Tuesday night? If you didn't you missed a classic of understanding of national affairs. If you did, that privilege was yours. President Hoover gave a reason for the faith that is his and an account of his endeavors for the coming of a brighter day in national experience. Receiving an ovation seldom accorded to any man the spirit of enthusiasm prevailed all as hearers and left a most favorable impression. As citizens of this great nation our confidence in the President is not misplaced and he is worthy of our unlimited support at the coming election. This is no time to "swap horses in crossing the stream" of depression and national difficulties. Partisan or non-partisan all must admit the President is an able and fearless leader and one absolutely to be trusted. A true and tried experienced leader is Herbert Hoover. We give him our unquestioned support.

Pulled Thro' Shadow Lake

Those who witnessed the rope pull at Mount Hermon school last Thursday afternoon enjoyed a rare treat. The Seniors and Juniors pulled against each other across Shadow Lake and the victory went to the Juniors. The seniors were dragged through the mud of the swampy end of the pond. They then gathered their forces in mid-pond and cheered their victorious opponents.

State Platform Of Republicans As Adopted At The Convention

The Republican state convention adopted the following platform for its state campaign:—

"We, the Republicans of Massachusetts, in convention assembled, pledge our allegiance and support to Herbert Hoover.

"In these trying times of worldwide economic distress he has been a patient, wise and fearless chief executive. He has been faithful to his trust. He has been faithful to the American people. His capacity for constructive statesmanship is proved. Under his leadership we are making definite progress toward recovery. That progress must not be interrupted. It is therefore imperative that President Hoover be re-elected.

"We pledge our every effort to the continuance of the constructive program set forth in the national platform.

"We also indorse the fine record of public service of William S. Youngman and Gaspar G. Bacon, our candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor, and pledge them our support, as we do to all the Republican candidates for election.

"Pledged to Strict Economy

"The Republican party pledges itself to a program of strict economy. Expenditures must come down. This applies to the nation, state, cities and towns. Only in this way can the burden on homeowners be reduced. It is vital to the people of Massachusetts that sound financial policies be followed. We pledge ourselves to the continuation of the state budget system and the 'pay-as-you-go' policy initiated by Republicans. Practiced and adhered to by Republican administrators, this policy has made the financial condition of Massachusetts outstanding among the states. No new or additional taxes should be imposed, or bonds issued, except as they may be necessary for emergency relief.

"We favor the repeal of the 18th amendment with absolute guarantee which will protect each state against interference and invasion by its neighbors, and will prevent the return of the saloon.

"We stand squarely on the Republican policy of the protective tariff. The adoption of the Democratic proposal of a 'competitive tariff for revenue' would mean a future of uncertainty to every wage-earner in Massachusetts. The wages of the employees in our industries must be protected from foreign competition.

"We pledge our party to provide adequately for those who are in want through no fault of their own and to forward such measures as shall hold out hope of steady employment in addition to relieving the distress of the moment.

Would Encourage Industry

"Unemployment will be most speedily relieved by industrial activity. When industry languishes, pay rolls diminish, employment ceases. Our citizens want employment rather than charity. We believe that every encouragement should be given to industry consistent with the welfare of the wage-earners.

"To the Republican party belongs the credit for the progressive labor legislation now on the statute books of the commonwealth which has improved the working conditions of our wage earners. We shall continue to urge the enactment of such additional legislation as experience demonstrates is necessary for further protection of the lives, health and working conditions of our industrial workers.

"We support the humanitarian program on child health and protection sponsored by President Hoover.

"Our concern is the happiness and welfare of all within the commonwealth. We ask the support of all citizens, regardless of party affiliations, who believe in the policies and principles herein set forth. Our record of performance in the past is a guarantee that the pledges which we make will be kept."

Poet's Corner

ENDURING ROOTS

My garden was so lovely,
In orange, red and gold,
It seemed that Winter could not come,
With storms so bleak and cold.

But I sadly gazed one morning
At the ruin the frost had wrought,
The gorgeous flowers were brown
and sear,
Upon the blackened stalks.

And though such beauty withered,
The roots were safe and strong,
Again they would be blooming,
When the birds returned with song.

Thus dreams and hopes are blasted
When they seem so heavenly fair,
But the roots still live to flower again.

If we give them thoughtful care.

The garden soil is richer made
By flower and leaf decay,
So strength is gained in lessons hard
Learned on Life's rough pathway.

Unfortunate are those doubting ones,
Who do not hope for Spring,
But many through experience,
Know gardens bloom again.

ACORNS ANNOUNCING

"Acorns announcing"—Each day if you please
To sit in my cabin up here in the trees,

You hear the broadcasting from Station M.N.
Mother Nature is telling the races of men.

That autumn is here,
Each day, do I say? That isn't quite right.
For broadcasting continues far in to the night.

The oaks drop their acorns and each one records
Its descent to the earth upon my roof boards.

"Acorns announcing"—They vie with the birds
That give us sweet notes we change into words: "Whip-poor-Will," or just "Keep"

They call us at dawn and they sing us to sleep
With songs that have lonesome strains, gay strains or mellow,

These sweet little broadcasters, brown, gray or yellow.

"Acorns announcing"—They say that for town,
Or wearing in country, try dark green or brown

Or russet that shades into all tones of red,
Such colors one sees in the trees and are shed

On the ground by the leaves as they carpet the earth
To nourish the soil.

"Acorns announcing"—What, ho, of the weather?
Acorns and leaves and branches together

Come tumbling down, so 't was frosty last night
And winds, even light, can loosen their hold

On the strong parent stem
As they forecast, 'Twill be cold, watch out for your garden."

"Acorns announcing"—What plays for the stage?
With settings by Autumn that world-renowned painter!

What casts with their 'cunning ways!
Chipmunks and squirrels, Yes, and birds days and night

Arranging their grouping for the long southern flight.

Many road companies have already gone
Down that way.

"Acorns announcing"—Ah, here's a serious strain
In the broadcasting.

Do you know that the Power that puts us to bed
Can waken us all as if from the dead

And give us new life in the Spring?
Yes, we sleep and we dream but we waken once more

To give to all of our bounteous store
Of beauty and wealth from the soil

Mother Nature believes that talents are given for use.
So, great oaks, symbols of power and might,

Were once little acorns dropping at night

And all thru the day on soil that was ready
To nurture them.

Time, the acorn, the tree—
What lessons they teach if we can but see

Mother Nature resplendent and know it is God
That is the force in that earthy clod

Into which the seed fell."

"Acorns announcing"—They're now on the air
Broadcasting here, and broadcasting there.

Songs, fashions, weather, plays, serious chat
From station M.N.

Mother Nature is busy out there with the trees
So we say to you all, "Stand by," if you please

BUILDING A TEMPLE

A builder built a temple;
He wrought it with care and skill—

Pillars and groins and arches,
All fashioned to work his will.

And men said, as they saw its beauty,
"It never shall know decay,
Great is thy skill, O builder!
Thy fame shall endure for aye!"

A mother built a temple
With infinite loving care,
Planning each arch with patience,
Laying each stone with prayer.

None praised her unceasing effort,
None knew of her wondrous plan
For the temple the mother built
Was unseen by the eye of man.

Gone is the builder's temple—
Crumbled into the dust;
Low lies each stately pillar,
Food for consuming rust.

But the temple the mother built
Will last while the ages roll,
For that beautiful unseen temple
Was a child's immortal soul.

The Worcester Meeting Big Grange Rally

A big Grange rally meeting is to be held in Mechanics Building, Worcester on Sunday afternoon, October 9th, which will bring together a large attendance from all the New England states and will be quite unusual in character. Doors will be open at noon and the event will start with a Grange "reunion" and social hour from 1 to 1.45 p.m., when the program will begin, open to all Subordinate Grange members. The "high spot" will be an address by National Master Louis J. Taber of Columbus, Ohio, who makes a special trip to Massachusetts for this occasion; also by National Lecturer James C. Farmer of New Hampshire. The Weber Male Quartet of Boston and Felton's Worcester Orchestra will furnish the musical numbers and several patriotic features will also be included in the program. State Lecturer, Henry N. Enks of Massachusetts will preside and give the welcome address.

After a 15-minute recess at 3.45 the session will again be called to order at 4 o'clock, but this time open only to those who have received the Seventh Degree in the Grange. This will be in charge of Charles M. Gardner of Springfield, High Priest of the Assembly of Democracy, who will interpret the ritualism of the Grange and exemplify its features; followed by a brief address, along ritualistic lines, by the National Master. An exceptional opportunity for those who have taken the highest degree in the Grange.

While this ritualistic session is in progress another meeting, open to all Fourth Degree members will be in progress in Washburn Hall, on the lower floor in the same building, conducted by Mrs. Margaret A. Sarre, Lecturer, Massachusetts State Grange, to include many inspiring program features, in keeping with the day.

Both these sessions will close at 5.30, concluding a Grange event of unusual interest. Other features will be included in the programs, all of which will be of a reverent, patriotic nature throughout. An attendance of more than 2,000 Grange members is anticipated.

Ample parking facilities near Mechanics Building are available, and police protection for cars will be provided. All State Grange officers and deputies will appear in full regalia.

Paul Moody President

Vermont Bible Society

Rev. Paul D. Moody, president of Middlebury college, and son of Dwight L. Moody was elected president of the Vermont Bible society at its 120th annual meeting held last week in Rutland, Vermont.

Officers elected by the Bible society, besides the president, were:

First vice president, A. M. Aseltine, Burlington; second vice president, Rev. Paul M. Swarthout, Brattleboro; treasurer, Dr. O. G. Simpson, Barre; corresponding secretary, Rev. George E. Robbins, Burlington; State director, Rev. Arthur W. Hewitt, Plainfield; recording secretary, W. H. Wood, Burlington.

The Society rendered a splendid report of its activities for the past year and gives much promise for the future.

Appreciation

The following words of appreciation have come in reference to the preaching mission:

"The sermons of Dr. Westwood at the neighbor church last week, were most impressive in their scholarly dignity and freedom from prejudice. Those who were privileged to listen to these addresses have received a spiritual inspiration that is deep and true."

Mrs. M. E. Vorce

Those who listened to Dr. Westwood were impressed with his wisdom, love and faith in dealing with the Spiritual Life. Even those who differ in doctrine can never forget his words. His attitude seems to be not merely a partaking of grace but that of responsibility toward the kingdom of earth, his Father's business.

Republican Convention Haigis Appeals for United Party

Speech of John W. Haigis, of Greenfield, Permanent Chairman of the Republican State Convention, held in Symphony Hall, Boston, Friday, September 30, 1932.

You have conferred upon me honor, responsibility, and satisfaction. The satisfaction is to serve you, a special participation at this time when we have met to renew our allegiance. The honor goes even deeper and is bound by associations with a long line of other conventions, reaching far into the past. Merely to name a few of the great figures of the Republican Party of Massachusetts is evidence of the honor and an inspiration to discharge its responsibility.

Serving Abraham Lincoln in a period of civil war were Charles Francis Adams, Charles Sumner and John A. Andrew, and in the years of reconstruction following came Henry L. Dawes and George Frisbie Hoar. When the Democratic Party threatened free trade and free silver, Henry Cabot Lodge rendered sturdy aid. When the strike of the Pennsylvania miners created a coal famine and a National crisis, Winthrop Murray Crane was great. Those issues and those men, together with a host of others, no less loyal and distinguished, have passed away. Their record is made up and spread at large on the pages of history. We all share in the honor and in the fruits of their achievements. They met and overcame civil war and the violent passions of a divided country. They travelled the long hard road from paper money to specie payments. They withstood a determined and formidable attack upon the gold standard. By close adherence to principle and an unswerving faith in party allegiance and loyalty, they knew much of victory, but little of defeat.

With the memory of such men and such traditions to guide us, we have a right to pride in the past and security in the future.

There is no reason why we should turn pale at the mention of the "forgotten man." And who is the man whom the Republican Party has forgotten? Is he the negro slave who is now free? Is he among that vast number who left Ireland, driven out by famine, pestilence and oppression and who found peace, comfort and political preferment in this country? Is he of the distressed of many Nations who sought and found refuge here? Is he the man out of work who is being fed and cared for as never before in history? Is he the soldier who is enjoying adjusted compensation, sick benefits, hospital care and disability allowances in liberal measure? Or is he perhaps the man in the White House upon whose unforgiving head rests the burden of this depression?

The President has accepted more than his share of responsibility. Through no act of his, did calamity come. By no mandate of his office, was he required to lend a hand to rectify mistakes of private business. He carried no obligation to attempt the rescue of the unwise private investments of willful men and women seized with money madness. Voluntarily as a moral duty he accepted the challenge of a severe crisis and manfully and powerfully met that challenge. Through a storm which threatened direct disaster, he has sailed a courageous and constructive course. His were the measures which have saved the people from suffering the worst effects of their own errors.

Today, thanks to his timely and effective aid, the business of the United States rests upon a solid secure basis. The crisis has passed. Recovery has begun. For meritorious service and bravery in time of danger, above and beyond the line of duty, Herbert Hoover has earned a triumphant re-election. But let us all invite you to lay aside all minor differences and accept with me a full share in honoring and rewarding such eminent service, with a firm resolve to be worthy of the great heritage of Republicans.

Another important responsibility rests with us. With urgency, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts asks our utmost effort. Let me name only the Republican Governors who come within my own recollection:—Bates, Guild, Draper, McCall, Coolidge, Cox, Fuller, Allen—sound, strong able exponents of our ancient faith in the State Government during the past quarter century know how difficult it is to maintain true and tried principles, the budget system, the pay-as-you-go policy, the strict limitation of taxation. Republicans did this down to 1930. Since then, these essential policies have been broken down. The time has now come to heed the call of the State, to forget controversial questions about which at other times men may disagree, and remember that the State is no stronger than her overburdened tax-payer.

"Old Guard," the "Young Guard," the Progressive, the Conservative, the Repealist, the Submissionist, the Anti-Submissionist, and every other divisionist, to unite under the Republican banner of practical, sound common sense, and rescue this great Commonwealth from the sentimental extravagance of the Democratic Party.

Indian Statue
On Mohawk Trail
Is Dedicated

A crowd of about fifteen hundred people were present last Saturday afternoon at the dedication and unveiling of the statue of the Mohawk Indian on the Mohawk Trail. It was a cold bleak day with overcast skies but the crowd did not lack in enthusiasm. There were throngs.

The draped statue on a nine-ton boulder facing east a short distance west of the three arch bridge together with the mountain rising majestically behind and showing splashes of red and yellow among its prevailing green filled those gathered at the spot with a sense of awe and beauty.

The exercises were in charge of the Improved Order of Red Men and Degree of Pocahontas and their high officials were present as well as hundreds of members of the order. The Greenfield High School Band rendered music. Hon. John W. Haigis presided and Joe Mitchell Chapelle was the principal speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Hill of Florence, Mass., have again been at their Forest Lake cottage.

The O. B. Pierces were in Lewiston, Me., last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis have been entertaining friends from Agwam, Mass.

Red Cross plans for the coming season are taking shape. Palmer Bliss, local Red Cross chairman, and Mrs. A. F. Pierce, secretary, are actively engaged in the major efforts of the local chapter toward unemployment relief.

Edward Payeski, of Headquarters company, 7th field infantry at Fort Ethan Allen, has been at home here for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Bliss entertained Mrs. Bliss' father, Chas. Strickland, of Arlington Heights, Mass., last week.

Work on the Manning hill road extension has been hindered somewhat by the weather of the past week, but Commissioner Frank Willard is pushing the project. A number of unemployed men were given jobs when this work started.

Mrs. Luman Nelson is in the Franklin County hospital where she underwent an operation on her foot. For a year a sufferer from this trouble, Mrs. Nelson is now resting comfortably following the removal of two small bones that were found to have caused her difficulty.

The first fall fellowship banquet of the Federated church has been set for the 7th and is looked forward to as the opening social event of the season here. Mrs. Bert Wood Mrs. M. E. Partridge, and Mrs. Carl Grube are in charge. The teachers of the public schools will be guests of honor.

Mrs. Jennie Frances Bent died Saturday, Sept. 24th and the funeral was the following Monday from the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. Earle Jones on Ashuelot Street.

Mrs. Bent was 78 years of age at the time of her death. She has been a life-long resident of this town, coming here with her parents from Nova Scotia, where she was born.

In 1871 she married Walter W. Coombs, by whom she had two children, Irwin W. Coombs of this town and Mrs. Herbert Hazen of Miami, Fla. In 1881 she married Everett W. Bent of Winchester.

The two children of this union survive—Mrs. W. Earle Jones and Elmer Bent, both of this town.

Great interest attaches locally to the coast and geodetic survey of the government, which has been prosecuted in this section all summer. The traveling outfit of the survey squad has been a familiar visitor to the back highways of this vicinity for some time past. Every local peak and hilltop has been visited by the engineers, who explain that the survey of some 30 years ago presented so many inaccuracies as to necessitate the work being done over again.

Two more years will be required to complete the project. Then anyone, possessing the new map, can determine at a moment's glance the elevations at all points on his property, as well as the other natural characteristics of his domain.

Mr. Baird of Warwick will open the fourth barber shop in Winchester soon.

"We, members of Belado-Crowley post of the American Legion of Millers Falls in regular meeting convened, do vote as follows: We protest the action of the American Legion in national convention convened, whereby they voted in favor of immediate payment in full of the adjusted service certificate being that we feel this is in violation of the preamble to the constitution of the Legion, wherein it states: 'To inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation, to make right the master of might.' Further, we note that a copy of this motion be sent to department of Massachusetts headquarters and to the press."

"TWO AGAINST THE WORLD" STARS CONSTANCE BENNETT

"Two against the World," which brings the glamorous Constance Bennett to local audiences again under the Warner Bros. banner at Lawler Theatre for 4 days beginning Sunday, is said to be the most sumptuously dressed and dramatically satisfying of all the pictures in which she has been starred.

Based on the 'best selling' novel of the same name by Marion Dix and Jerry Horwin, "Two Against the World" is a thrilling story of love and murder in high places; of a luxury loving lady who finds herself suddenly face to face with law with the man she loves, as the prosecutor; of a proud girl who dares disgrace and ruin to protect a name.

Running all the way from the tantrums of a spoiled child of the rich to the turgid emotions of a disgraced woman in love, "Two Against the World" gives Miss Bennett her greatest screen role to date. If, as has been recently rumored, the Marquise de la Falaise as Constance Bennett is known in private life, is to retire shortly from the screen, "Two Against the World" may long be remembered as a thoroughly satisfying, opportunity laden vehicle for her swan song.

The picture is lavishly staged and richly dressed, as befits the fame and beauty of the star. Miss Bennett herself has never been so beautifully gowned. The supporting cast, headed by Neil Hamilton and including Allen Vincent, Helen Vinson, Gavin Gordon, Walter Walker, Hale Hamilton, Alan Mowbray and Roscoe Karns, is of impressive excellence. The picture is directed by Archie Mayo, who guided Miss Bennett's first Warner Brothers production, "Bought," a tremendous box office success of some months past.

"Two Against the World" is really a vital love story involving a man of the masses and a woman of the classes. Public calamity, the great leveller, intervenes to break down old barriers and build new ones, with the status of the principals reversed. There are many light moments that are delightful and smartly dialogued scenes, with a courtroom sequence of a dramatic intensity rarely seen before on the talking screen.

There are twenty-odd new gowns, worn as only Miss Bennett can wear them. There are love scenes played as only Miss Bennett can play them and an audience thrill which only an exceptional combination of star, cast, story and producing organization, could possibly offer.

"THE SILVER LINING" SELECTED BY DIRECTOR FOR ITS ENTERTAINMENT VALUES Maureen O'Sullivan Has Leading Role

When Alan Crosland, the famous director, decided to step out and make independent productions after turning out smashing successes for the big companies, he decided that his first story would have to be something out of the ordinary.

Not necessarily a novelty, a freak or what-not, but a picture that the public would enjoy, and talk about. Above all it had to be entertainment.

After a long search he found a story called "The Silver Lining" by Hal Conklin that is so far from the ordinary run of screen stories that it stands alone.

In selecting "The Silver Lining" as his debut as an independent director for Patrician Pictures Crosland had many thoughts in mind—first was a story that was distinctly human—second a cast that could and would properly delineate the various characters allotted them, and he was more than successful as "The Silver Lining" will convey to the spectator. The production will be shown at the Lawler Theatre Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, October 9-10-11-12.

Crosland felt that the industry was watching his efforts on this picture and was naturally compelled to give it everything he had. The finished product speaks for itself.

"The Silver Lining" chronicles the humanization of a society mob whose admirers, and so-called friends, prey upon her free and easy methods of life—a snob who has a rather sudden and rude awakening, and whose return to normalcy is a grand parade of human emotions.

The story is vitally interesting for it centers around the every-day life of a group of average humans—it takes one from the dreary of human life to the ver pinnacle of happiness.

The cast in the story is headed by Maureen O'Sullivan, Betty Compton, John Warburton, Montagu Love, Mary Doran, Cornelius Keefe, Wally Albright, Grace Valentine, J. Frank Glendon, Helen Gibson, Martha Mattox and a score of other popular names.

Montagu Love Has His Own Troubles

Montagu Love seems to have his troubles along with several other screen stars. And if Monty suffers as they have the reason is that his name is Montagu—without the "e."

Love is featured in "The Silver Lining," Alan Crosland's latest production, which comes to the Lawler Theatre on Oct. 9.

"BLESSED EVENT, HAILED AS OUTSTANDING PICTURE, COMING TO LAWLER THEATRE

Every once in a while, Hollywood goes speechless before a picture which defies the inventive genius of the film capitol to coin its well known, flamboyant adjectives which would really do the picture justice.

In such a case, they literally and figuratively let the picture speak for itself; and according to all advance reports on "Blessed Event," the Warner Bros. picture which comes to the Lawler Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday unburdens itself of a lot of the "real stuff."

When Broadway decided to tell tales on the talebearers, "Blessed Event" was hailed as the most entertaining vehicle in which sniping columnists were brought before the public gaze, including their methods of news gathering, their own love affairs, and their other deep, dark secrets.

This successful stage hit by Manuel Seff and Forrest Wilson was immediately purchased by Warner Bros. as a vehicle for Lee Tracy and an all star cast. It went into production with the screen adaptation written by Howard Green.

The applause of press and public which greeted the advance showings of the film definitely pointed to it as being one of the outstanding productions of the year, because of its plot—its sustained rapid-fire comedy, and consistent fine acting.

The pains with which Warner Bros. went about producing this picture is reflected in the cast which was chosen with great care. Lee Tracy, who will long be remembered by Broadway as the original Hildy Johnson of "The Front Page," is typically suited to the role of the columnist. Allen Jenkins, Milton Wallace and Isabel Jewel were transported from the original New York stage play to do their parts in the picture. The ideal leading lady was found in Mary Brian, and Ned Sparks, Ruth Donnelly and Emma Dunn were chosen after a careful survey of possible candidates for their respective roles. All of the smaller parts and "bits" were filled by well known and capable players.

The pace at which the picture moves, demanded and received the highly capable acting which could keep up with its rapid tempo. It is claimed that "Blessed Event" contains more laughs and thrills per reel of film than any picture produced since talkies first came in.

New York life as seen by a gossiping columnist is no slow procession, and when things happen to him and around him in this picture, the audience is promised a breathless time keeping up with its surge of events, dizzy chatter, and fast, wise-cracking dialogue.

The direction of this production was given to Roy Del Ruth, ace Warner Bros. megaphonist, who proved his mettle last year by such knockout sensations as "Winner Take All," "Taxi" and "Blonde Crazy."

From the standpoint of entertainment, critics have hailed "Blessed Event" as one hundred percent, and good to the last flicker.

That period known as "between pictures" may be the occasion for a vacation in the mountains or a yachting cruise for other Hollywood stars, but it offers no such opportunity for recreation to Ruth Chatterton, now at the Garden Theatre in "The Crash," adapted from Larry Barratto's novel, "Children of Pleasure."

Except for the fact that she does not have to put on make-up and appear on the set, Miss Chatterton is often as busy between pictures as she is during production. Eight to ten hours a day is her habitual routine. Keeping herself up to the minute on the latest developments in pictures occupies a great deal of her time. She is as well informed about current productions as a stock broker is about the daily state of the market. She spends many hours every week looking at pictures, both those made by her fellow-stars on the First National lot and the productions of other studios. And her own dual knowledge of the theatre, in which she has been both director and player herself, gives her a double interest in every picture which she studies, as she keenly analyzes each from both the acting and directorial angles.

"The Crash" is a story of the effect of the stock crash on the idle rich.

For the support of Ruth Chatterton, First National has assembled a brilliant cast. George Brent, now her husband, is again her leading man. Paul Cavanagh, Hardie Albright, Ivan Simpson, Henry Kolker, Arnold Korff, Barbara Leonard, Juliette Compton, Lois Wilson, Virginia Hammond and Helena Phillips are entrusted with important roles in the drama.

For ten years, since the production of his epic, "Grandma's Boy," Harold Lloyd has sought to outdo the "fadeout" gag, in that picture. You may recall the scene where he carried the girl across a brook, stepped on what he thought was a big rock, and when he came to his senses, foundering in the water, saw a pig nonchalantly walking up the bank of the brook. It was a laugh "riot," and topped off what many still regard as the greatest silent comedy ever produced.

In "Movie Crazy," with Constance Cummings, which comes Saturday to the Garden Theatre, the bespectacled comedian's first screen offering in two years, Lloyd has come through with just the closing gag he has been searching for these years.

It comes as "finis" on a series of three running gags, each of which is hilarious in itself, but all of which build up to a grand climax, with the final one rating as the greatest laugh finish the comedian has ever filmed.

Lloyd pulled this gag out of the air, and sensing its merits, developed into what every comedian craves—a bit of business that runs throughout the picture, building with each repetition.

In this instance the business is built around the breaking of a straw hat worn by a motion picture producer.

The role of Luana in "Bird of Paradise" can't be expected to repeat its old trick of shooting its leading woman up to a new high in the Hollywood firmament, for the talking film version, which RKO Radio now presents, has Dolores Del Rio as the heroine—and Dolores is not exactly strange to fame. But if an unknown actress were playing the part, it would be a pretty safe bet, judging from the past record of the exotic romance, that the unknown would find in the sympathetic role of Luana her first big opportunity and the beginning of a stellar career.

A look at the "name" actresses who first achieved renown while playing Luana will convince the doubter. Anyone who knows the difference between balcony and orchestra knows the name of Laurette Taylor. Miss Taylor was known as "a comer" when she was awarded the part in "Bird of Paradise" which Miss Del Rio now plays. When she had played the role for the New York run of the famous Richard Walton Tully's opus, she was one of America's best known actresses. Lenore Ulric had her first big chance as Luana. Carlotta Monterey, now the wife of Eugene O'Neill, had the part of the native Hawaiian girl, too. Sood did Beatie Barriacale, noted British actress. It seemed to be a role that had a quality of endowing an actress with a tremendous appeal at the same time that it brought out her greatest histrionic ability.

The men who played in the original cast did not fare so badly, either. Lewis Stone is perhaps the best known of them today; but the name of the late Theodore Roberts, beloved screen favorite, is known even to the rising generation. Guy Bates Post was another famous name in the former cast of characters of "Bird of Paradise." In the talking screen version Joel McCrea, latest of filmdom's conspicuous young he-man heroes plays the coveted role of Johnny Baker. In its dramatic existence has been attended by as many persons as "East Lynne." Ten road companies were tramping with it at one time several years ago. It ran a year in London. And yet, with its Hawaiian locale and background of native lore and rics, it is every bit as alive as when it took Gotham and the provinces for S. R. O. receipts in the heyday of the spoken drama.

Directed as the most spectacular recent production of King Vidor, "Bird of Paradise" with Dolores Del Rio and Joel McCrea comes to the Garden Theatre opening on next Wednesday.
